

ZJGSU Law students go to the HKIAC Shanghai Office for research and study

On 3 June 2019, some undergraduate international students from the class of 18Q of the Law (International Law) program and postgraduate students of School of Law of Zhejiang Gongshang University (ZJGSU) visited Hong Kong International Arbitration Center (HKIAC) Shanghai Office. Aimed at our law school students who had interest in arbitration, this event provided details on why parties chose to arbitrate, and in particular why parties used HKIAC Shanghai Office as the arbitral institution.

Our students were accorded a cordial reception by Dr. Yang Ling, the Deputy Secretary-General and Chief Representative of HKIAC Shanghai Office. She brilliantly and humorously explained the course of development, cognizance of case, and characteristic of case management of HKIAC Shanghai Office. It sparked our students' interest in further discussions on arbitration rule, appointment of arbitrator, professional participation, the administration and monitoring of the arbitral proceedings. Dr. Yang Ling meticulously explained all these and pointed out that arbitration institution should play more significant role in the social governance of a modern country. International business arbitration has long been the focus of attention all over the world. HKIAC pursues and persists on equality and justice, including enhancing the status of women in arbitration, pulling weight of women on the arbitration stage and helping the development of developing countries.

HKIAC Shanghai Office was established in November 2015. It is the first representative office of internationally renowned arbitration institution in Shanghai.
